GENERAL INTRODUCTION

PROVENANCE

The papers were received from Lady Butterfield in 2004 and 2005.

OUTLINE OF THE CAREER OF WILLIAM JOHN HUGHES BUTTERFIELD

(William) John (Hughes) Butterfield was born on 28 March 1920 at Stechford in the West Midlands. He was educated at Solihull School, Warwickshire, Exeter College Oxford and Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore (MD 1944, conferred 1951). After returning to Britain in 1944 he did his junior appointments in pathology, medicine and surgery, was on the staff of the Medical Research Council from 1946 at the Clinical Research Unit at Guy's Hospital under R.T. Grant, and did his national service, serving with the Royal Army Medical Corps, 1947-1949. Butterfield worked on burns, specifically on attempts to estimate the effects of nuclear explosions, continuing his work as a research fellow at the Virginia Medical College, Richmond, 1950-1952. In 1952 and 1956 he witnessed the British nuclear tests in the Monte Bello islands off the north-west coast of Australia. While working on burns, unexpected observations of the effect of the poison gas antidote British anti-lewisite on blood glucose levels initiated his lifelong interest in diabetes.

Butterfield returned to mainstream medical research at the Clinical Research Unit at Guy's Hospital, London. In 1958 he was appointed professor in the newly established Department of Experimental Medicine at Guy's. For the next twelve years he led a highly successful diabetes research team. He pioneered automated chemistry to measure blood sugar and in 1962 with his Guy's team Butterfield conducted a large-scale epidemiological study in Bedford which revealed many people with undiagnosed diabetes, decisively influenced the prevailing views of diabetes and led to internationally-accepted diagnostic standards for the disease. Alongside his research programme, he maintained a first-class clinical diabetes unit, general medical service and bedside clinical teaching programme. During his time at Guy's Butterfield developed interests in community medicine and medical planning (general practice), for example in respect of the creation of the Thamesmead new town.

In 1971 he was appointed Vice-Chancellor of Nottingham University, a difficult time because of widespread student unrest. Nottingham already had a medical school for pre-clinical students, and Butterfield set out during his Vice-Chancellorship to create a clinical school for fourth and fifth year students. He took on an increasing number of public responsibilities including the chairmanship of the Council for the Education and Training of Health Visitors, 1971-1976, and chairmanship of the East Midlands Economic Council, 1974-1976. Butterfield maintained his contacts with Guy's as Consultant Professor Emeritus and from 1974 as a member of the Council of Governors (later Chairman of the Council of Governors of the United Medical Schools of Guy's and St Thomas's).

During Butterfield's period at Nottingham he was much involved with planning the extended clinical school at Cambridge and he moved to Cambridge to lead the School of Clinical Medicine as Regius Professor of Physic, 1976-1987. Here he presided over an impressive range of new developments and appointments, despite a less favourable financial situation than originally envisaged, and continued his clinical and research interests. He was Master of Downing College, 1978-1987, and served the wider university community as Vice-Chancellor, 1983-1985. As a student at Oxford, 1940-1942, he was a triple blue, playing against Cambridge at rugby, hockey and cricket - captaining the Dark Blues in the latter two sports. In Cambridge he was an active supporter of student sport as patron, chairman and president of sports clubs, and in offering his advice and experience to appeals for better facilities. He also supported the development of sports medicine in Cambridge in the form of a clinic to treat sports injuries at Addenbrooke's Hospital.

His public responsibilities continued to grow in number including Chairmanship of the Medicines Commission, 1976-1982, membership of the Medical Research Council, 1976-1980, and Chairmanship of the Health Promotion Research Trust, 1983-1993, a controversial appointment because of its tobacco industry funding. Indeed, throughout his career and well past formal retirement age, Butterfield gave an enormous variety of service to professional bodies, medical and educational charities, the pharmaceutical industry, government advisory boards and the scientific advisory committees of research institutes, often as a highly regarded chairman. His last major project was raising money to establish the College of Teachers, in an attempt to improve the public standing of the profession.

Butterfield's distinguished career was recognised by many academic, professional and public honours including visiting professorships, invitations to deliver named lectures and honorary degrees. He was awarded an OBE in 1953 and knighted in 1978. In 1988 Butterfield was made a life peer and he took an active role in the House of Lords in such areas of policy as higher education, medical research and the National Health Service.

Butterfield married Ann Sanders in 1946 but she died while giving birth to their son. In 1950 he married Isabel-Ann Foster Kennedy, the daughter of an eminent New York neurologist, and they had two sons and a daughter. He died on 26 July 2000.

DESCRIPTION OF THE COLLECTION

The collection is presented as given in the list of contents. It is substantial and covers the period 1945-2000, though the bulk dates from Butterfield's years as Cambridge Regius, 1976-1987, and his very active years of 'retirement' to 2000.

Section A, Biographical, consists principally of long sequences of diaries, message books and personal notebooks. There is sequence of diaries in a variety of smaller formats 1951, 1960 - 1993-1994 used by Butterfield for a personal record of engagements. From 1975-1976 onwards Butterfield used Cambridge University pocket diaries. There is a series of large format office diaries for engagements kept by secretaries, 1962-2000. There is also a series of message books kept by secretaries, 1976-2000. Although what is recorded in these books varies over time, their contents may include records of telephone and other messages for Butterfield and records of telephone calls made by secretaries on his behalf. An important series of personal notebooks was initiated by Butterfield in 1968 to record ideas including research ideas, plans, personal diary and reflections, and drafts. Drafts include letters and talks, addresses and lectures and there are also many notes of meetings attended and visits made. These notebooks are particularly important for Butterfield's last years at Guy's Hospital and his Vice-Chancellorship of the University of Nottingham, which are not well documented elsewhere in the archive. Butterfield continued to use these notebooks for the rest of his life, the last one covering the period 1998-2000.

In addition to these series of diaries and notebooks, the section includes obituaries, curricula vitae and entries for biographical directories, papers relating to the Old Silhillians Association (for old boys of Solihull School) and a selection of menu cards, often signed, and related material, for social occasions in Cambridge and elsewhere in the 1980s and 1990s.

Section B, Guy's Hospital London, is not extensive but diverse in topic and character. It includes a number of items relating to Butterfield's diabetes research including two notebooks dating from 1954-1956, while he was working at the MRC Clinical Research Unit at the Hospital. There is scant documentation of his Professorship of Experimental Medicine at Guy's though there is a little material reflecting his interest in the running of one of the hospital wards and in computer requirements at the hospital. There is, however, correspondence relating to his position as Consultant Professor Emeritus, which he held after his departure for the Vice-Chancellorship at the University of Nottingham in 1971, and correspondence and papers relating to the Council of Governors, of which Butterfield was a member from 1974. For the Thamesnead new town project in which Butterfield and Guy's were very much involved and the University of Essex / Guy's General Practice Computer Unit see Section F. See Section F also for the Council of Governors of the United Medical and Dental Schools of Guy's and St Thomas's Hospitals.

Section C, University of Cambridge, provides extensive documentation of Butterfield's period as Regius Professor of Physic, 1976-1987, especially important for the development of the School of Clinical Medicine. Much of the Clinical School material is organised by department including old established departments such as Medicine (I.H. Mills) and Surgery (R.Y. Calne), including support for transplantation studies, and new developments and appointments including Clinical Biochemistry (C.N. Hales), Clinical Pharmacology (M.J. Brown), Community Medicine (R.M. Acheson), Haematological Medicine (F.G.J. Hayhoe), Paediatrics (J.A. Davis), Psychiatry (M. Roth) and Radiology (T. Sherwood). Other Clinical School papers are organised under such headings as: Clinical Dean, Committees, Examining, Funding, Special Projects and Teaching. Special projects include curriculum monitoring and evaluation project in the new Clinical School (R.E. Wakeford) funded by the Nuffield Foundation. There is documentation of Butterfield's relations with other University departments such as Anatomy, Engineering (proposed postgraduate degree in biomedical engineering and research projects with medical applications), History and Philosophy of Science, and Pathology; with Hughes Hall; and with the MRC Dunn Nutrition Unit. There is extensive material relating to the key role of the Regius in relation to the NHS Regional and Area Health Authorities including hospital developments in Huntingdon and Peterborough and the Regional Cardiac Unit at Papworth Hospital. Butterfield's Mastership of Downing College, 1978-1987, and Vice-Chancellorship, 1983-1985, are principally represented by files of 'personal' correspondence. Butterfield's great support for sport in Cambridge is well represented in the section, including the large number of sports clubs of which he was chairman, president or patron, and campaigns for improved sports facilities. Of particular interest are the records of his support for the development of sports medicine in Cambridge, especially the early years of the clinic established at Addenbrooke's Hospital in 1978 to treat sports injuries and the 1995 Appeal to support its expansion.

Section D, Lectures, visits and conferences, forms a substantial record of these activities covering the period, 1963-1999. The material is presented in three main sequences: a sequence of 'lectures, conferences and symposia' material, 1963-1972, and separate sequences of lectures material, 1970-1999, and visits and conferences material, 1964-1993. A little documentation relating to Butterfield's contributions to radio and television programmes, 1967-1973 is also presented here for convenience. The material may include drafts of Butterfield's conference papers, speeches and addresses, typescripts of the contributions of others, correspondence about arrangements and arising from meetings, programmes and list of participants.

Section E, Publications, presents drafts, editorial and advisory correspondence and a box of Butterfield's reprints, with a list of reprints and a supplementary list of 'undated papers'. The drafts cover an extended period of over forty years to 1994 but are unrepresentative of Butterfield's publication record, especially in diabetes research. There is, however, significant material relating to Butterfield's early work on flash burns from atomic bombs. There are also undated drafts of work with L.P. Krall for proposed publication or publications on 'Living with Diabetes'. The editorial correspondence covers a relatively short period, 1970-1985, and chiefly documents Butterfield's relations with the publisher John Wiley & Sons, especially in respect of the International Dictionary of Medicine and Biology (IDMB), for which Butterfield was a member of the Advisory Board.

Section F, Societies and organisations, is by far the largest in the archive. It documents, often very extensively, some 124 professional bodies, medical and educational charities, government advisory boards, industry organisations, research institutes and the like, to which Butterfield gave service over a period of almost fifty years, including the last year of his life. Only a small number of these bodies can be highlighted here. Professional bodies include the College of Teachers, the medical Royal Colleges and the BMA. Medical charities include Age Research/British Foundation for Age Research, British Diabetic Association, British Heart Foundation, Help the Aged, Save the Children (in respect of its Stop Polio Campaign) and Tommy's Campaign (for research into the causation and prevention of poor fetal growth, prematurity and stillbirth). He was associated with a large number of pharmaceutical companies during his career, for example, Beecham Group plc, Boots Company plc, Hoechst UK Ltd, Miles Laboratories Ltd, Upjohn Ltd, Warner Lambert Company and the Wellcome Foundation Ltd and more generally British Insulin Manufacturers and the Association of the British Pharmaceutical Industry and its Animals in Medicine Information Centre. Government appointments included the Committee on Medical Aspects of Food Policy, the Council for the Education and Training of Health Visitors, the East Midlands Economic Planning Council, the Health Promotion Research Trust, and the Medicines Commission. Research Institutes include the Cambridge branch of the Ludwig Institute for Cancer Research (K. Sikora) and the William Harvey Research Institute (J.R. Vane). A number of topic folders were found in the alphabetical sequences of societies and organisations and have been retained with societies. These include 'Action Learning' which reflects Butterfield's interest in the work of R.W. Revans, and 'Aptitudes', which reflects his interest in surveying the skills and aptitudes of school leavers. Additionally Butterfield was a member of a number of dining and other clubs and had a particularly long and well-documented association with the Medical Pilgrims.

Section G, House of Lords, documents Butterfield's engagement with the business of the House including his maiden speech, 25 January 1989 on the second reading of the Junior Hospital Doctors (Regulation of Hours) Bill, and the work of Select Committees such as Science and Technology and European Communities. Apart from his maiden speech there are also drafts for a number of speeches in the House on topics such as NHS reform, education (student loans), health issues in the European Community and the teaching profession. Butterfield's correspondents include fellow peers, government ministers, civil servants and individuals and organisations interested in the business before the House.

Section H, Correspondence, is substantial covering an extended period, 1945-2000, though the great bulk dates from Butterfield's period as Regius at Cambridge and the years of his formal retirement. Much of Butterfield's correspondence was kept in alphabetical sequences of 'miscellaneous' correspondence for particular chronological periods. 'Miscellaneous' correspondence for Butterfield's last years at Guy's and his period as Nottingham Vice-Chancellor survives for only a handful of letters of the alphabet 'A', 'E', 'R' and 'W'. Three further organised miscellaneous sequences cover very approximately the period from his arrival in Cambridge to his becoming Vice-Chancellor in 1983, the first half of his Vice-Chancellorship, 1983-1984 and the years from his retirement as Regius to 2000. The end of his Vice-Chancellorship, 1985, and his last years as Regius, 1986-1987 seem less well covered. However, the miscellaneous correspondence sequences are supplemented by carbons of outgoing correspondence, 1981, 1986-1987, 'personal' correspondence, 1978-1986, and correspondence arranged by topic, for example 'Education' and 'National Health Service', 1976-1999. Additionally there is a significant record of his relations with patients, and references and recommendations material. It should be noted that there is also important and extensive correspondence in other sections of the archive, notably sections C and F.

There is also an index of correspondents.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

We are very grateful to Lady Butterfield for making the papers available and for her financial support of the project.

A.101-A.167 PERSONAL NOTEBOOKS 1968-2000

This was a new series of notebooks which was initiated in September 1968 to record ideas including research ideas, plans, personal diary and reflections, and drafts. Drafts include letters and talks, addresses and lectures. There are also many notes of meetings attended and visits made.

The notebooks are illustrated with Butterfield's sketches of people and places.

The notebooks presented as A.101-A.137 are numbered and dated on spine. The numbering and dating are not completely reliable and the notebooks are listed as far as possible in chronological order. The notebooks at A.139-A.143 have labels on front covers.

The rationale of the notebooks is explained by Butterfield in a note on page one of the first volume (A.101).

A.101 September 1968 - January 1969

B.1-B.4 RESEARCH 1954-c.1971

B.1-B.2 1954-1956

Two hardback notebooks compiled while Butterfield was working at the Clinical Research Unit at Guy's Hospital, 1953-1957. They record various experiments on blood flow ('finger volume' experiments, vasodilation, effect of posture etc) on a number of subjects and are partly in Butterfield's hand. The contents are chiefly tables of experimental data, graphs and notes. Intercalated material includes manuscript graphs, a few loose clinical notes and, occasionally, correspondence (some of it Butterfield's) re particular patients.

The inscriptions on the covers (see below) appear to indicate that these notebooks were originally part of a series, probably covering further experiments on blood flow.

B.1 Notebook inscribed 'Lab. Record Book III' on cover, 'Vol A' on spine. August 1954-September 1955

Chiefly in the hand of another researcher.

Paginated 1-188.

B.2 Notebook inscribed 'Lab. Record Book IV' on cover, 'Vol B' on spine. August 1955-May 1956

Partly in Butterfield's hand.

Includes (near the back) correspondence re patients, January-February 1955.

Paginated 1-185.

B.12-B.21 GENERAL CORRESPONDENCE 1970-1977

Chiefly re matters arising from Butterfield's position as Consultant Professor Emeritus (appointed in May or June 1971 after he left Guy's to take up the Vice-Chancellorship of the University of Nottingham) and his continued close association with the hospital following his departure.

Contents of a file.

10 folders.

B.22-B.38 COUNCIL OF GOVERNORS 1974, 1978, 1980-1983

Butterfield was a member of the Council of Governors, Guy's Hospital Medical School, 1974-1982, and subsequently a member, becoming Chairman, of the Council of the United Medical and Dental Schools of Guy's and St. Thomas's Hospitals (UMDS).

Minutes of meetings and other papers, with correspondence.

Almost all the papers are in the date span 1981-1983.

17 folders.

For further material relating to the UMDS see F.2405-F.2446.

B.39-B.64 SLIDES FOR LECTURES 1955-1964

Figures for slides and draft slides (with related photographic material), prepared at Guy's Hospital, used for unidentified lectures by Butterfield.

Much of the material was found in files inscribed alphabetically and this sequence is preserved below. Most of the figures etc are also inscribed numerically and sometimes have annotations in Butterfield's hand.

re information requested by Butterfield. | 1964-1966 |
| D.19-D.37 | Tour of New Zealand, Australia and Singapore, 1965.
(Envelope no. 17)

Butterfield was Pfizer Guest Professor for 1965 on the invitation of the Post-Graduate Committee in Medicine, University of Sydney. His programme involved visits to hospitals and medical schools in Australia and New Zealand and delivering a number of lectures, chiefly on diabetes and related topics. He also attended the Second Australian Medical Congress in Perth, 16-20 August. After leaving Australia he visited the University of Singapore Medical School and delivered lectures. A rough breakdown of Butterfield's itinerary is as follows:

3 July - arrives in Australia; 5-18 July - in New Zealand (Christchurch, Wellington, Auckland); 18 July-24 August - in Australia (including Melbourne, Adelaide, Hobart and Perth); 25-27 August - in Singapore.

At the Second Australian Medical Congress Butterfield gave a paper in the section: 'Endocrine Case Demonstration'. | 1964-1966 |
| D.19-D.29 | Correspondence chiefly re arrangements and arising.

Included is Butterfield's correspondence, during his absence, with colleagues at Guy's Hospital and a few personal letters.

11 folders. | 1964-1966 |
| D.30 | Postcards from Butterfield to members of his family. | |
| D.31 | Itineraries and programmes for various parts of the tour. | |
| D.32 | Programmes and printed matter relating to the Second Australian Medical Congress. | |

Lectures, visits and conferences

- D.33 Manuscript notes in Butterfield's hand re diabetes and related topics.
- The notes appear to be for lectures given on the tour. Inscriptions such as 'Singapore' and the names of some Australian cities appear on a few pages.
- D.34 Papers relating to clinical cases etc.
- The material appears to have been used for a lecture or a seminar. The date '26.8.65' appears on two papers.
- D.35 Typescript and abstract of apparently published papers by Butterfield:
- 'Computer-Assisted Diabetic Screening Analysis', 9pp.
- 'The Glucose Tolerance Test: Its Use in Screening for and Managing the New Diabetic', 1p abstract only.
- D.36 Newspaper cuttings containing reports of Butterfield's lectures in Australia and New Zealand.
- D.37 4 black and white photographs taken during the trip, one featuring Butterfield.
- D.38 Refresher course held by the Society of Medical Officers of Health - County District Group, Birkbeck College, London, 19-21 September 1968. (Envelope no. 74) 1968
- Butterfield gave a talk on 'Screening Procedures' on the first day.
